SOMETHING NEW KNOWING.

The coal business is being demoralized by a competition that is the result of the fact that the miners' threat and demands are conceded that as a majority of consumers are concerned they are willing to pay a little more for their fuel if the miners reap any benefit and as it is made of distressing straits.

COST OF GETTING COAL IN ENGLAND.

A very remarkable feature of the recent course of the coal industry is furnished by an examination of the course of prices. Within the last few years the increased depth of working necessitated by the economic conditions under which the coal is won, the restrictions and the increased output entailed by the provisions of the several mines regulation acts, and the movements of labor, with a few minor influences have considerably increased the cost of producing coal in the United Kingdom. On the other hand, the greater command of capital, which in the United States has been the case, has enabled coal to be produced at a much lower cost, and the more economical machinery and appliances to be employed, the greater efficiency of labor, and the adoption of more economical methods and processes have enabled other coal-producing countries to produce considerably cheaper than they formerly did. The irrevocable result has been that Great Britain has now—and will have in the last few years—ceased to command the supremacy which she formerly enjoyed as a cheap coal-producing country. The "Mineral Statistics," our official record of production and prices, show that the average value of the coal output of the United Kingdom in 1895 was 75.3d. and in 1896 75.5d. per ton, whereas a few years ago it was 65d. per ton, or 10s. 3d. per ton. In Germany, the average value of the coal output, taken as a whole, was within a fraction of the same price for the same years, while in Belgium the average was much under that of a few years ago. In the United States, the recorded value of the output of bituminous coal has not, for several years past, averaged much over 4s. 3d. per ton, and in some states the average falls to about 3d. per ton, which is only a trifle more than half of the official value of our coal supply two years ago.—Times (London).

PITHY PARAGRAPHS.

The Boston Maine corporation had sixteen people in the Charleston District Court in one day charged with stealing coal from the cars of that company.

At many places in New York State coal is now cheaper than it has been in sixteen years, since 1890. At that time it will be remembered that coal dropped one dollar a ton on all grades in the spring.

The idea of mining all the coal possible and selling at any price, may be good policy for the carrying companies, but it is death to individual operators.

Among the special features of the Patent Office exhibit at the exposition at Atlanta, will be the systematic presentation of the process of coal mining and the use of coal, especially directed to the coal of the Southern States. The coal exhibit is expected to show every process and product from the original Anthracite blocks through all the stages of its production, from its production, to its use in the home, and its use in the factory.

Mr. David T. Day, Chief of the Mining Division of the Geological Survey, who is in charge of the mining exhibits at the Atlanta Exposition, has just returned from a visit to that city. He says that the work upon the Exposition building is progressing handsomely, and that he is very much interested in the mining exhibit under his charge. He says that the exhibit will be the largest of its kind in the United States. Of the exhibit he says that it will be of great interest and value to the people of the United States.

The mines at Saltville, O., which were filled with water after a heavy rain about three weeks ago, are now dry, and are in operation.

The consolidation of all the coal mines along the C. M. & St. P. road has been effected under the name of the Walnut Coal Association. It is the largest consolidation of the kind in the United States.

At Chicago, Ill., the price of soft coal has advanced 5c. per ton. The price of soft coal has advanced 5c. per ton. The price of soft coal has advanced 5c. per ton.

A SERMON.

UP LINE TO HEAVEN, AND DOWN LINE TO HELL.

By Major William Carver of the English Salvation Army.

Text:—Ezekiel 34:12: "I will be to them as a good shepherd, and I will seek the lost." "I will be to them as a good shepherd, and I will seek the lost."

UP LINE.

The Architect of the line was the Infinite Jehovah. He saw our first parents, and gave the dimensions of an earthly "new and living way." He said the seed of the woman would bruise the serpent's head, and the gates of hell would be opened, and the gates of heaven would be opened.

THE GREAT CONTRACTOR.

He was Christ Jesus. He gave himself, offered to satisfy infinite justice, and cried out, "I have found you, a nation. He rescued our nation, fought the great battle in the flesh, was tempted, hungered, thirsted, prayed, wept, bled, and died, and the cross he bore was the way of life to all men."

a secret, intent only upon separating me from him. "And didn't tell you that I would permit no friend of mine to be called a scoundrel by anyone without resorting to the utmost?" he replied. "That I did call him that," I insisted. "Yes, and what good did it do you?" he said, stepping to the window and looking out. "I am sorry to say that my picture had formerly been the attraction of the street."
